Dormitory Petitions Available Today

Petitions for dormitory representatives to Student Council will be available from residence hall directors today.

As a result of Student Council reapportionment, one representative will now be chosen from each residence hall to serve on the Council. Petitioners must have a 2.5 accumulative point average, which is the standard for all Student Council members, and must reside in the residence hall in which they are seeking election.

The petitions must contain 25 signatures from students within the particular residence hall and must be submitted by 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1 to the Alumni House, Miss Cheryl Smith, assistant coordinator of student activities, said.

Students may sign only one petition and may vote only in their own residence hall.

Elections are scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 7 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in each residence hall lobby.

Jack Baker, president of Student Council, said that the main reason for the new dormitory representation is to "bring Student Council more to the grass roots level." He added that previously students did not know who was representatives will be in the dormitory and in better communication with the students.

"Any student will have the opportunity to run for a seat on Student Council," Baker said. "We are trying to encourage the able and qualified person to do so."

Stating his hopes that the new plan will eliminate the present apathy in student government, Baker said, "If the able and qualified person does run, the reapportionment will work."

Surprise! Coed's 'Big Sis' Is Male

By MARILYN DRAPER
Issue Editor

As if the first week of college isn't confusing enough for an incoming freshman, Sue Codington, from Euclid, Ohio, got an extra jolt last week. She discovered that her AWS big sis is a male.

Sue's "big" Patrick (Pat) Smith, is the only male big sis on campus, and probably the only male big sis in the history of the University.

It all started last spring when the Association of Women Students began their annual campaign for big sis applicants.

"They had posters up all over the place that said they needed big sisses for the freshman girls," said Pat, a junior from Fremont. A friend of Pat's, Shirley Waugh, also a junior from Fremont, jokingly suggested that he apply for a big sis because of his name.

"I thought it was a rather novel idea," Pat said. "So I sent a self-addressed envelope to Kate Balsley."

That was all Pat had to do to become a big sis. Miss Balsley, who is general chairman of the AWS big sis-little sis committee, had no idea that the envelope bearing Pat Smith's name had been sent by a man.

"We just took the names," she said. "We didn't check them to see if they were male or female."

Sue, after receiving the name of her big sis from AWS, wrote to Pat. Shirley, at Pat's request wrote a typical big sis letter in reply--complete with advice on what type of clothes to wear at college and the signature of Pat Smith.

When Sue moved into her dorm, Shirley visited her and made friends with her, introducing herself as a "friend of Pat's." She told Sue that Pat was very busy and wouldn't be able to see her until later.

Then, last Thursday, Shirley took Sue to the Nest and there introduced her to Pat Smith.

It took Sue awhile to get over the shock, but she doesn't seem to mind having a male big sis. "I've had a good time with it so far," she commented.

Pat took Sue to the Nest for a coke, as a good big sis should, and is interested in taking her to the annual big sis-little sis picnic Saturday.

"I could really have a ball with that picnic," he said, "but I'd have to have the go-ahead from higher authorities first."

According to Miss Balsley, Pat will be allowed to attend the picnic with his little sis.

The weather for today: Increasing cloudiness and not as cool followed by occasional rain tonight. High 60-65.

'65 Sig Ep Mud Tug Is Dirtiest Ever

By RANDY KETCHAM
Issue Editor

Don't believe those rumors you heard. The 1965 Sigma Phi Epsilon Mud Tug was NOT called off because the mud froze the night before the contest.

However, more than 100 members of the fraternities and sororities on campus probably wish the tug had been postponed. The only participants that weren't heading for a long shower after it was all over were the members of Delta Gamma social sorority and Phi Kappa Tau and Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternities, who made up the winning team.

In what had to be the dirtiest event ever held on campus, this team slushed out the hopes of the Kappa Delta social sorority-Phi Delta Theta social fraternity team in the finals of the third annual Mud Tug Saturday east of Harshman Quadrangle.

The festivities began a little before 1 p.m. when the 1965 Mud Tug "queen" was crowned. The coronation was climaxed when Queen John Hobe was given a mud bath by his escorts.

The tradition of having a queen preside over the event was started two years ago. Hobe is a Sigma Phi Epsilon pledge selected Mud Tug queen by his pledge brothers.

Jerry Richardson, president of Sigma Phi Epsilon, estimated about 3,500 people saw the event, the largest crowd in its history.

To enter the finals, the champions defeated a team made up of members from Phi Mu social sorority and Pi Kappa Alpha and Phi Kappa Psi social fraternities. The runners-up beat the Gamma Phi Beta social sorority-Theta Chi social fraternity team in the semi-finals.

Although there were no bleachers at the event, two trucks and a 1940 Chrysler (which will never be the same) supported several spectators.

The only problem that has resulted from this year's Mud Tug is what to do with 625 square feet of messy mud.

Frosh Orientation Program Termed School's Best Ever

This year's Freshman Orientation has been termed by many the best in the history of the University.

Robert J. Dewey, coordinator of student activities, attributed the orientation's success to the 128 student leaders that helped guide the program.

"The student leaders organized and stayed with their groups very well," said Mr. Dewey, "and they succeeded in getting across to the incoming freshman how wellupperclassmen like Bowling Green."

"If we could have the entire student body as interested in something as these leaders were, the University could accomplish almost anything," he added.

Karen Tomczak, chairman of the Orientation Board, was responsible for organizing the entire affair, noted Cheryl Smith, assistant coordinator of student activities. Miss Smith said that the Orientation Program "was Karen's responsibility and she handled it well."

Thomas J. Colaner, director of admissions, said the Freshman Class was perhaps the most interested and "alert group" ever.

They were really great, he said. "The interest of the student leaders and the work of the people in the Student Activities Office were also very important in the success."

Student Deferments Under Pressure

By The Collegiate Press Service

WASHINGTON - With the October and November draft calls the largest since the Korean War, the nation's draft boards are set to look at requests for student deferments with a more discerning eye.

The Selective Service System has no intention of abandoning deferments for students in colleges and universities, but, under the tighter policy, draft boards will be picking up some deferred students who are not attending school full time or who are not making satisfactory progress in their classes.

Last January the total nationwide draft call was only 5,400 men. In February, it dropped to 3,000. The Viet Nam crises shot the draft call to 7,900 in March; 13,700 in April; 15,100 in May; 17,000 in June; 17,100 in July; and 16,500 in August.

Then, on July 28 President Johnson announced that a September call of 27,000 men would be necessary in order to meet the increased commitment in Vietnam.

Even at that time most state Selective Service men were quoted as saying they didn't feel the new figures would cause any change in the draft status of most men because "draft pools" were large enough to take care of the increased demands.

In most states, draft officials were quoted, some off the record, as saying that married men with no other dependants still need not fear for the draft. Under a 1963 order by President Kennedy, married men with no children were not to be drafted as long as single men were available.

But the Defense Department announced an October call of 33,600 and recently announced its November call of 36,450--the two largest calls since the end of the Korean War. And in November, for the first time since Korea, the draft will include men for the Marines Corps.

Some states began to backtrack on their previous statements about married men and many conceded that it would be necessary

On Aug. 26, President Johnson dropped his bombshell and announced he had revoked President Kennedy's order and that married without children would be considered the same as single men as far as the draft is concerned.

Trying to beat the order's midnight deadline, young couple's sought out marriage spots like Los Vegas, Nev. Some made it and got married before midnight.

But Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of the Selective Service System, observed, "I believe these couples will find they didn't beat any deadline. We'll get most of them--in four or five months."

The facts remain that with the increased draft calls, local boards are rapidly running out of single men between the ages of 19 and 26--the present induction limits--and the childless married men are the next to go.

The same sort of concern has been registered among college students who fear that continued high draft calls will further deplete the draft pools and they, after the married men, they'll be the next to go.

As one Selective Service official points out, "There is nothing automatic about a student being deferred. Each case is considered on its own merits with the student's course of study, its importance to the national interest, and the student's scholastic ability "being used as measuring sticks."

The same high official suggested that as the quotas rise (or even if they stay at the present high level for some extended period of time) and the age of the draftee drops, boards probably will not be able to give deferments for longer than a year.

"This would cover a man in his senior year or probably could be extended in order to let a junior finish school, but it probably would not let the 19 or 20 year-old sophomore finish college before being called for military duty," he said.

He said any student who received an order for induction while in school might be given a I-S classification that would allow him to finish that school year before reporting for duty.

The first thing likely to happen is that probationary or borderline students will lose their deferments as they did during the Korean War. This means draft boards could require a student to meet certain academic levels in order to retain his deferment.

The graduate student's chances of completing his studies before service vary. The state director of Selective Service for Maryland said in a recent interview that graduate deferments were considered by local boards, but that deferments were given after asking if the student's study were serving the national interest, health, or safety.

The Maryland director, Brig. Gen. Henry C. Stanwood, said he felt the requirement could be interpreted to mean that science, math and medical students were favored.

Just as there will be a tightening of student deferments, medical deferments will also be harder to come by.

If a man is called to take his physical, the chances are still better than even that he will be turned down. A report from the Army Surgeon General's office indicated that during 1964 only 47 per cent of the 847,511 draftees were accepted.

Of the 53 per cent that failed to qualify, 22.2 per cent were for medical reasons; 16.2 per cent for mental reasons; 11.4 per cent had "limited training ability," 1.5 per cent had both medical and mental reasons for being rejected; and 1.7 per cent were found to be "morally unfit."

The easiest way to get drafted is to be in some sort of trouble with your local board. The highest draftable classification is reserved for those who the local board finds to be "delinquent" under the Selective Service Act.

This may be a person who doesn't keep the board informed of his address or his status. The law says a registrant must furnish the board information on any change of status within 10 days. Now there is a new way to be in trouble with the board, and with the law.

President Johnson signed a law Aug. 31 that makes it illegal for anyone to burn or destroy his draft card. Enacted by Congress to counteract student demonstrations that included a public burning or tearing up of draft cards as a protest to the war in Viet Nam, the law provides for a $10,000 fine or five years in prison for anyone who destroys his Selective Service card.

Stop "Mud Slinging"

BY GEORGE BRAATZ
Columnist

I think today is a good day to have a dirty story in this newspaper. So I'm going to tell one. It's about a dirty mudtug.

It was the first mudtug I witnessed at the University when I was a freshman, and, of course, I didn't know what was going on immediately.

I was strolling toward the tennis courts to meet a companion for a brisk game of tennis, when I heard some loud shouting and screaming. I looked up to see a crowd standing around people struggling.

"Oh, boy, a gand fight," was my first thought, "just like Main Street in my home town every Saturday night."

As I approached, however, I could see that two groups of people were fighting over an old dirty piece of rope. I was about to suggest that for a few dollars, each group could buy a brand new rope at the hardware store, but then I realized that they were just having a game of tug-of-war with the rope.

But this was the most unsportsmanlike little game I had witnessed in a long time. The team on my left was the dirtiest group of tug-of-war players I had ever seen.

They were not only filthy in appearance, all full of mud and all, but they were using some of the most uncouth tactics possible.

Apparently these bullies had come to the picnic dirty, or maybe they had just crashed it. Any way they had engaged themselves in this game with a group of cleanly-dressed students.

The dirty group must have felt very embarrassed because of their rudy attire, for they were trying to pull this clean group on my right into a huge mud hole.

I was about ready to step forward and put an end to things, seeing that everyone else was just going to stand around and yell, when across the field rode a knight on horseback with shiny armor and all. (In case you were wondering, it was the knight who was wearing the armor, not the horse.) As he approached, waving his long, silver lance, I thought, "Here it comes--he will point the weapon at the dirty bullies, they will become spotlessly clean, and the picnic can go on and have a happy ending."

Of course this did not happen.

The gallantly-dressed horseman stopped at the edge of the crowd and began passing out handbills advertising a local laundromat. When the knight first appeared, the clean-looking bunch of tuggers on my right looked up for a moment, relazing their strain, and the dirty bullies promptly pulled them into the mud hole.

What surprised me was that a few minutes later picnic officials handed this group of dirty bullies a trophy for turning the good guys into dirty, mud-covered, losers.

Now I imagine some of you will not believe this story, but if it didn't happen, my name is mud.

New York -- Priests will help New York City policemen to guard every gate into Yankee Stadium next Monday night when Pope Paul conducts a mass before an expected 90,000 persons.

Arrangements for the Pope's appearance in the stadium, following his visit to the United Nations to plead for peace, were spelled out today by the Right Rev. Monsignor Thomas M. Govern of the New York Chancery Office.

Monsignor M. Govern said the decision to station a priest with the policemen guarding each gate of the stadium was based on a desire to "maintain the decorum of the occasion."

The principal function of the priests will be to quietly discourage would-be gate-crashers who might not respond as willingly to being turned away by a policeman, he said.

Only ticket holders will be allowed in the stadium, and they will be permitted to enter beginning at 5 p.m. The Mass will be held at 8:30 p.m.

Food concession stands in the stadium will operate as usual with one exception--no beer will be sold.

The mass will be celebrated in Latin, with responses from the audience and the gospel and epistle in English.

AWS: Changes Reviewed

When University coeds returned to campus this fall, they found the campus changed--not only in appearance, but in regulations as well.

Through new ruling established by the Association of Women Students last spring, women now are granted increased responsibility for example, by not having to sign-in; by not having to sign parental permission cards for overnights; by receiving additional weekday and weekend late permissions.

How do students here feel about such changes? This question, asked to various University students, received the following replies:

Dianne Dixon, junior in the College of Education, felt that "college women always have been mature enough to know when to come in at night. I feel it was a tremendous move on the part of AWS," she said, "to eliminate some of the prehistoric rules they were enforcing. The sign-in rule should have been eliminated years ago.

Barbara Sperry, sophomore in the College of Education, stated that "it's going to be up to the women whether or not the elimination of signing-in is going to succeed. I think the new rules are good," she continued. They were put into effect because the women of Bowling Green wanted them."

"The new rules mean more emphasis on self-decision," said Fitz Otis, junior in the College of Liberal Arts. "With strict rules, there is less chance for a person to make his own decisions," Otis added, "and they don't necessarily make a person more mature. The creation of more late makes it convenient for organizations which have out-of-town events planned during the evening," he said.

Linda Peter, junior in the College of Education, feels that the "elimination of signing-in means less congestion at the main desk at closing time." Miss Peter is a resident assistant in Prout Hall. She also added that it was "petty that mechanical errors in signing-in were considered violations."

Everybody is happy with AWS, said Maureen Weldon, senior in the College of Education. "By giving us more responsibility, AWS is making us feel more mature," Miss Weldon also urged women to use the optional sign-out sheet.

Rosh Hashanah Marks Start Of Jewish New Year, 5726

BY JUDY HIRSCH
Managing Editor

The Jewish religious year begins with the first day of the Jewish month Tishri, which usually falls between September 6 and October 5.

Rosh Hashanah or New Year's Day, is the beginning of the ten day penitential season, called the High Holidays, and ending with Yom Kippur or the Day of Atonement.

These ten days have been described as the Days of Judgment when all living things pass before God and stand in judgment for their deed during the past year.

The festival of Rosh Hashanah, sometimes called the Festival of Trumpets, is particularly devoted to prayer for peace and prosperity for all and for life and happiness. It emphasizes the recognition of God as King of the Universe. This phase of the festival is reflected not only in prayer of the day but in several of the ceremonies.

In Washington, Rosh Hashanah services will be held in the prayer room at the Capitol, in a ceremony which serves the religious scruples of certain Jewish congressmen, as well as their sense of civic duty.

The group wants to be on hand for House consideration of a bill giving self-rule to the District of Columbia. Yet the creed of some Jewish congressmen prevents their riding in vehicles on the holy days. Therefore, they are staying within walking distance of the capitol.

Strict tenets of the Orthodox Jewish faith forbid writing and working on the holy days. However, House votes are by voice, and so no writing is required. The group of congressmen considers the House debate the performance of a sworn duty rather than work in the business sense of the word.

The shofar or ram's horn is sounded before, during and after the additional morning prayer. A mystic significance was attached to this custom. In ancient times the blasts of the horn were believed to have the power to drive away evil spirits.

To convert this pagan notion into a higher religious idea, the Jewish leaders said that the shofar would be blown to remind the people of the intended sacrifice of Isaac, for, according to tradition, Abraham attempted to sacrifice Isaac on this day on the spot where Jerusalem Temple was later erected. Since by the command of God, a ram was substituted for Isaac, the leaders explained that the blowing of the ram's horn would remind the people of God's providence.

The notes sounded by the shofar tend to arouse the people to repentance.

In about the tenth or eleventh century, the custom of Tashlich arose. On the first day of Rosh Hashanah after the afternoon service, the congregation would go to the edge of the river, lake, sea or flowing water to recite a ritual casting their sins into the sea. The men would shake their coats and sleeves, as though brushing their sins into the water. The custom still remains in the Orthodox rituals.

On the evening of Rosh Hashanah it is customary to eat apples and other fruits dipped in honey. Special loaves of white bread are formed round and smooth, as a symbol of the desire that the year be smooth, and this is dipped into the honey. The bread and honey are then eaten at one meal everyday until Yom Kippur.

The various rites of atonement reach their climax on Yom Kippur.

During these ten days it is expected that everyone will observe particularly high standards of ethical and ceremonial conduct.

THE UNITED Nations Security Council has again called on India and Pakistan to end their warlike behavior and pull back their troops. Meeting in emergency session Monday night, the 11-member council unanimously approved a new demand that the two nations observe the UN cease-fire and withdraw their forces to positions held on Aug. 5--before the outbreak of their undeclared war.

Barber Prices Will Not Rise

Although the prices of haircuts have been going up throughout the state, the University Barber Shop sees no change in its rates in the near future.

Austin Sweeney, manager of the shop, noted that there has been an almost simultaneous rise in prices in the Akron, Cleveland and Detroit areas.

"There are no plans for a change of rates here," Mr. Sweeney confirmed.

Price changes are determined by the local organization, cooperating with the international organization, Mr. Sweeney said, Bowling Green's local 640 of the International Journeyman Barbers Association will keep its price at $1.75 for the present.

The last price change in the Bowling Green area was February 1963, when prices rose from $1.50 to $1.75.

Rosh Hashanah

There are special prayers assigned for each part of the day. On the day preceding Yom Kippur, tradition prescribes festive meals. The final meal of the day, eaten before sundown, ushers in Yom Kippur. Before eating the meal, an oral confession of sins is recited by each person as a part of the afternoon prayer.

The ceremony of atonement dates back to the very beginning of the Jewish religion. The ceremonies centered around the high priest who burnt frankincense and made an oral confession on behalf of the people. The unusual part of the ceremony consisted in having the priest lay the sins of the Israelites upon the head of a goat and sending this into the wilderness.

As the wilderness slowly died away, atonement became more spiritual, until today it is basically fasting and prayer.

The Day of Atonement is the season for repentance for sins committed against men and law. Misunderstandings are to be cleared up and friendships renewed.

The evening service in the synagogue, which must be recited before dark, is called kol nidre. This is a service of absolution from ceremonial vows. Since Jewish Law requires the fulfillment of every vow, even at great sacrifice, this is one of the necessary services.

The Day of Atonement is the major fast in the Jewish calendar. The Jewish refrain from physical work, enjoyment and nourishment. The prayers are arranged so they continue uninterrupted from the beginning in the morning until the end in the service after sunset. At the end of the day, it is customary to wish one another "A happy New Year and a good sealing," that is, the sealing of the divine decree concerning each life, for the period of the year just beginning.

Following the sunrise is the Anbeissen or breaking of the penitential fast, with everyone confident of a happy year.

Teacher Shortage Leaves Many Vacancies In Schools

It's a safe bet that when U.S. school doors opened this month many elementary and secondary educational systems did not have enough teachers.

"Each year school administrators face a shortage of teachers and this year has been no different," said Karel King, teacher placement director at the University. This year her office has received some 43,000 notices of teacher vacancies throughout the country.

School administrators have many problems trying to fill the gaps in their staffs, Miss King explained. First they must replace teachers who leave full-time service. The National Educational Association says almost 200,000 teachers fall into this category.

In addition, teachers must be found to meet a rising increase in enrollment and to staff the increasing number of special instructional services that many school systems provide.

The greatest demand for teachers is at the elementary level, Miss King said.

"The turnover is tremendous because about 85 per cent of elementary school teachers are women and most teach only about two years before leaving to marry or raise a family," she said.

Miss King believes the shortage would be eased if more men were recruited for elementary teaching, since their careers usually last longer.

Some school officials blame the lack of teachers on the low level of salaries in the field.

But Miss King maintains that teachers' salaries are improving. She said 83 per cent of the 1965 University graduates who entered the teaching field began at a salary of $4,800 or more, with some as high as $5,700. These figures did not include a $200 increase for Ohio teachers with certificates that went into effect when Governor James A. Rhodes signed a bill providing the increase, she said.

Another factor causing teacher shortages at the elementary and secondary levels is the appeal of graduate study.

"Many students who work toward advanced degrees tend to do their teaching on the college level," Miss King said.

Miss King believes that the teacher shortage problem will continue in future years. Although the number of students planning teaching careers is increasing, it doesn't offset the number of teachers needed to meet growing enrollment figures predicted for several years to come, she said.

Graduate Fellowship Applications Now Available

Seniors and graduates interested in college teaching as a career and planning to study for a Ph.D. may apply for details about the Danforth Graduate Fellowships to Dr. Sherman M. Stanage, associate professor of philosophy.

Danforth Graduate Fellows are eligible for four years of financial assistance, with a maximum annual stipend of $1800 for single Fellows and $2200 for married Fellows, plus tuition and fees. Dependency allowances are available and financial need is not a condition for consideration.

The Danforth Graduate Fellowships are among the most widely respected of all graduate study awards, Dr. Stanage said.

Howard Aldrich, who last year graduated Summa Cum Laude, was the first University graduate to be awarded a Danforth grant.

The Danforth Foundation, one of the nation's 10 largest educational foundations, was founded in 1927 by the late William H. Danforth, St. Louis businessman and philanthropist. The foundation's primary aim is to strengthen liberal education through programs of fellowships and workshops, and through grants to colleges, universities, and other educational agencies.

The local closing date for applications for University students is October 18, 1965.

Weekend Activities . . . Mud to Music

The first weekend was a busy one. Freshmen relaxed at the end of the week with a freshmen-only dance with entertainment provided at intermission in the form of a skit showing the trials of the incoming freshmen. Saturday afternoon provided entertainment in the form of the Sig Ep Mud Tug, attended by about 3,500 persons. The highlight of the event was the crowning of the Mud Queen, John Hobe, who was then thrown into the mud by his pledge brothers. Participants in the tug relaxed after their soaking by removing their shoes, dripping with mud. For relaxation, Marge Fitzgerald, Tim Greene and John Seibert sang folk songs on the steps of Moseley Hall. This ended the first week of classes.

MAC Review

Rockets, Broncos, Herd Post Wins

Toledo, Marshall and Western Michigan remained unbeaten while Miami and Ohio U. continued winless in preleague action last weekend in the Mid-American Conference.

The Rockets tripped the Quantico Marines, extending their modest win streak to two games, longest since winning the final two games of the 1962 season.

Marshall, another so-called also-ran in preseason evaluations, trounced Eastern Kentucky, 28-12. Mickey Jackson was the star for the Thundering Herd, scoring four touchdowns. This gives him two game total of seven touchdowns.

Western Michigan roared back with a 21-point second half to beat Central Michigan, and win their second in a row, 21-13.

Two Conference favorites, meanwhile, continued to have problems.

Ohio U. suffered a 24-7 defeat at the hands of Maryland. The Terps turned the ball over on fumbles four times, but the Bobcats were not able to take advantage of the situation. Twice passes were intercepted and a 15-yard penalty stall fourth period drives by Ohio.

Xavier continued to plague Mid-American teams by edging Miami, 29-28. Last week the Musketeers topped Kent State. Xavier locked up the win over Miami with only 25 seconds, when Carroll Williams ran 17 yards for a touchdown, then passed to Walt Mainer for the game winning PAT.

Kent State collected its first win of the season, beating Dayton, 14-6. The Flashes trailed 6-0 at intermission, but scored touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters to nail down the victory.

1955 was Doyt Perry's first year as Falcon football coach. He ended the year with a 7-1-1 record.

In 1964 the Falcon's played before a total of 109,749 fans over a 10 game schedule.

Harriers Split Meet

By JIM MEIGHAN
Sports Writer

The Bowling Green cross country team could only manage a split decision Saturday, as they toppled the University of Kentucky 21-40 while losing to Miami University 16-47.

A speedy Redskin quadruplet captured the first four places in the clash at Oxford, with ace BG sophomore Bob Parks grabbing fifth.

"Parks did a fine job when you consider he was out with an injury since last Tuesday," commented Coach Mel Brodt.

Brodt added, "Bob slipped and injured his shin in the rain; it was doubtful whether he would be able to run until right before meet time."

"Bob's injury slowed him down on the hills a great deal; as it was he was only 17 seconds behind the winner."

Parks finished before any of the Kentucky runners, giving BG a firm hold on their victory over the Wildcats.

Another sophomore point getter for the Falcons was Dan Sekerak, who grabbed a ninth against the Redskins and a third against Kentucky. Right behind Sekerak was co-captain Bill Kerns, running fourth against the Wildcats and tenth against Miami.

Rounding out the scoring for the Falcons were two sophomores, Bob Knoll and Ron Nicholson. Knoll took fifth in the Kentucky contest while capturing 11th against Miami. Nicholson managed sixth in the Miami meet and 12th against Kentucky.

Coed Leads Poll

Barbara Schmidt came out on top in last week's pigskin poll as she picked 14 of the 20 games correctly. Fellow quests Bill Yund and Robert Dewey had 11 and 10 correct, respectively.

The regular "experts" did not fare too well last week. Jack Hartman had 12 correct, as did Jerry Govan, while Larry Donald had 10 correct.

The totals show that Jack Hartman leads the regular staff with 24 of 39 correct. Guest faculty and staff have a combined total of 23 of 39 correct.

"I look for an improved team as we travel to Central State next week; Parks will be all right then, and the whole team will be in better condition," Coach Brodt said.

The Falcons travel to Wilberforce, Ohio, Saturday where they will take on Central State and Slippery Rock in their second triangular meet.

Fired-Up Buffalo Whitewash Falcons

By JACK HARTMAN
Sports Editor

Canyon, Tex. - A fired-up herd of Buffaloes lured the Falcons into their den here Saturday night and skillfully knocked "The Birds" off their perch with a stunning 34-0 victory.

It started as though the Falcons were going to make mince-meat out of the Buffaloes.

In first quarter Bowling Green moved the ball over 100 yards. Taking the opening kick-off, they advanced from their own 14 to the Buffs' 43 before having to punt.

After an unsuccessful series by West Texas, the Buffs punted and the Falcons took over on the 15. Once again Bowling Green marched into Buff territory, this time to the 29 before losing the ball on downs.

The teams exchanged punts and then early in the second quarter West Texas took over on the Bowling Green 45. Halfback Steve Haterius 16-yard return of Joe Siesel's 49-yard punt gave the Buffs the good field position.

Then the Falcons found out what makes the Buffaloes tick. Quarterback Spencer (Hank) Washington marched the Buffaloes 45 yards in 10 plays for the touchdown. Twice Washington threw for a first down on a third down play.

A three-yard touchdown pass to end Ted Wheeler finished the drive. Ronnie Mankin kicked the extra point.

The Falcons took the kick-off on the 14. After three plays, it was fourth down and five yards to go on the 19. Joe Siesel went back to punt but the snap went over his head just touching his outstretched fingertips.

He recovered the ball, but was quickly nailed on his own one-yard-line.

The Buffs took possession on downs. On the second play from scrimmage fullback Brian Dedy dived in for the score. Mankin converted again and with 6:05 remaining in the first half the Falcons trailed 14-0.

Desiring to close the gap before the half ended, the Falcons took to the air after returning the kick-off to their own 28.

Two passes and a run failed to advance the football. Another punt was called for. This time the snap was true and Siesel booted it 40 yards. Haterius picked it off and returned it 27 yards to the Bowling Green 41. Siesel, the last man between Haterius and daylight, made a clutch shoe-string tackle.

Unfortunately, it only postponed the agony. Washington passed and ran, finally sneaking into paydirt from one yard out with 1:38 remaining for the Buffs third touchdown. Mankin converted to up the score to 21-0.

If that wasn't enough, Haterius intercepted a Dwight Wallace pass on the Falcons' first play from scrimmage after the kick-off and returned it to Bowling Green's 20.

Washington threw two incomplete passes before hitting Wheeler in the end zone on a third down situation with 51 seconds remaining. Mankin again booted the PAT to make it 28-0.

The Falcons kept it on the ground and ran out the clock after the ensuing kick-off.

Never fully recovering from the shocking four-touchdown explosion by the Buffs in a span of less than eight minutes, the Falcons managed four drives into Buffalo territory in the second half.

In the closing moments of the game, the Falcons threatened on the West Texas seven-yard-line but time ran out before they could score.

The Buffalo scored their fifth and final touchdown in the third quarter when defensive halfback Rick Barrett intercepted a Dick Waring pass and returned it 35 yards for a touchdown. Mankin missed the extra point attempt this time.

Gifted Washington To Be A Legend?

Hank Washington, the Buffs' quarterback, could well become a Texas legend before his two years of eligibility are over.

The 6-4, 210 pound junior can do almost everything. He can run, pass and lead and his relaxed confident manner on the field undoubtedly rubs off on his teammates. When back to pass, he refused to be pressed but, behind good protection, would wait for a receiver to get loose.

His patience and passing accuracy let to 11 completions in 18 attempts for 101 yards. When he couldn't find a receiver he ran. On one occasion he picked up 13 yards on the ground. He was never thrown for a loss.

Three times he passed for a first down on a third down situation during the touchdown filled second quarter. Once he ran a quarterback sneak for a first down on a fourth and one play. In addition, he was directly responsible for three of the Buffaloes touchdowns, throwing for two and sneaking in for one.

The gangling signal caller completely dominated the Buffaloes' scoring marches in the second quarter.

Of the 23 offensive plays directly leading to the scores, Washington either passed or ran the ball himself on 20 occasions.

Not bad for a transfer student who has been at West Texas State only eight months.
